To: [Headhunting agency]

Bcc: [School faculty]

Dear Ms. [person at headhunting agency] (bcc'ed to colleagues in HSS)

I am applying for the position of Dean of Humanities and Social Sciences (HSS) at HKUST.

Currently, I am a professor in the Social Science Division of the same school.

Attached please find my CV.

For letters of recommendation, please consider the dozen letters of recommendation already on file at HKUST. Colleagues across the division if not school, division head, current dean, and provost are familiar with my capability to provide strong professional leadership based on professional practices in the world's leading universities (see my time spent at Stanford, Harvard, Princeton, Yale, and Cornell).

The vacancy announcement also states a preference for a person familiar with China and the Chinese language: I have been researching the PRC economy since 1986, speak Mandarin, have lived for several years in the PRC, Taiwan, and Macao, and since 1995 live in Hong Kong.

I would be grateful if you could confirm receipt of my application.

Sincerely,
Carsten Holz
